Boeing's Annual Current Market Outlook and AIR, Inc.'s Pilot Forecast

by Barbara Cima and Kit Darby

Airline analysts use numerous industry "weathervanes" to predict which way the market trends will "blow" in the future—aircraft orders, passenger enplane-ments, and traffic trends are but a few. Boeing, the world's leading aerospace company and the largest manufacturer of commercial jetliners and military aircraft combined, projected a need for 25,700 aircraft worth $2.1 trillion in its 2005 CMO. It has upped its ante this year, announcing a requirement for 27,200 new aircraft valued at more than $2.6 trillion through 2025.

US Airways Orders Jets

US Airways placed a $625 million order in early August for 25 EMB-190s. The 106-seat 190s will replace many of US Airways' 50-seat planes and fly mainly out of Philadelphia. The first jet will be delivered in December 2006.

DAL Leasing B-757s

In its first big addition of new aircraft since 9/11, Delta Air Lines signed a seven-year rental agreement to lease 10 B757-200s. The ex-TWA jets, due for delivery in July 2007, will be used for flights to Hawaii and some regions in Europe.

Continental Converts B-737 Order

Continental Airlines (CAL) converted 12 existing firm orders for B-737NGs into 12 B-737-900ERs for delivery in 2008. CAL is the first U.S. carrier to order the B-737-900ER, which flies about 500 nautical miles farther than the existing 737-900. The carrier still has firm commitments for 65 B-737NGs and has the ability to convert more of its existing B-737 orders to the -900ER series.

Awarded Postal Deal

FedEx Express signed an agreement worth $8 billion to transport mail in the U.S. for the Postal Service. FedEx says the seven-year agreement, which replaces a previous contract, takes effect in October 2006.

MAJOR AIRLINES - Profit/Loss Second Quarter '06

NATIONAL AIRLINES - Profit/Loss Second Quarter '06

Sun Country Awarded Best Honors

Travel and Leisure magazine announced its 11th annual "World's Best Awards" for 2005 and Sun Country Airlines was the top airline performer. The Mendota Heights-based carrier emerged from Chapter 11 in early 2002 and credits "its business plan to keep growing as a low-fare carrier in a tough airline industry" as a primary reason for its success.

NWA Recalling Pilots

Due to higher than anticipated flying levels, Northwest Airlines (NWA) anticipates recalling pilots sooner than previously scheduled. NWA will recall 40 to 50 pilots through the remainder of 2006 and expects recalls to continue at a reduced, but steady pace in 2007. NWA will begin the recall process by sending out 75 Preliminary Notices of Recall and plans to have the first 20-25 pilots start training in October 2006.

Pilots Authorize Strike

Approximately 92% of ASA's pilots, represented by the Air Line Pilots Association (ALPA), voted in favor of a strike should talks with the National Mediation Board (NMB) meet an impasse. Wage reductions for CRJ-700 crewmembers and pay freezes for CRJ-200 first officers are sighted as the prominent culprits fueling the stalemate. The NMB must release the two sides from talks and issue a 30-day cooling off period before strike actions can be carried out.

WORLD AIRWAYS

Posts 2005 Financials

World Airways posted a late 2005 year-end financial report that resulted in the NASDAQ exchange delisting the stock in May. World posted a net profit of $31.6M, up 24% from 2004, while revenues increased 56% to $787.1 million. The posting delay was attributed to North American merger complications.

MESABA AIRLINES

Terminating Contracts

The judge overseeing Mesaba Airlines' bankruptcy restructuring granted the carrier's second request to terminate its labor contracts with their pilots, mechanics, and flight attendants. Mesaba needs to cut $17.1 million in labor costs to keep flying the 49 Saab turbo-props flying under the Northwest Airline banner. The court must give the labor groups ten days' notice before voiding the contracts. All three groups have elected to strike if Mesaba dissolves its contracts.

Management Buyout

Pan Am International Flight Academy announced that the training academy's Commercial Airline Training, Air Traffic Control Training (ATC), and Saab Training divisions completed a management buyout July 20. Management's buyout was sponsored by American Capital Strategies (ACAS). "We are extremely pleased to have attracted a financial partner of the stature of ACAS, and we're confident that we will enjoy a very exciting and profitable relationship with them," said Pan Am CEO Vito Cutrone. Pan Am will be headquartered in Miami, FL and will continue to operate training centers in Miami, FL; Memphis, TN; Minneapolis, MN; Cincinnati, OH; and Las Vegas, NV.

duction of “new, very efficient, very capable aircraft,” which will replace older airplanes from current fleets sooner than might otherwise have occurred, according to Boeing. In the next 20 years, replacement aircraft will account for an estimated 35% of the deliveries, or 9,600 planes, an increase of approximately 1,400.

Passenger traffic is expected to grow 4.9% annually, a marginal increase from the 4.8% average annual growth rate for the 1985-2005 period. Traffic growth will create a demand for 17,300 new airplanes.

Boeing heightened its forecast for 400-seat and larger jets from 900 to 990 (only 325 in the A380 size category), while demand for regional jets over 90 seats will decrease from 3,900 to 3,450. Single-aisle aircraft seating 100-240 will represent 61% of the deliveries over the 20-year period, or 16,540 planes. Twin-aisle aircraft seating 200-400 will account for 6,230.

Airlines in North America will constitute the majority of aircraft orders with 9,490, followed by Asia/Pacific carriers with 7,900, and Europe with 6,600. In financial terms, however, Asia, with a high percentage of wide-body aircraft orders, leads the market with deliveries worth $930 billion, followed by North America at $740 billion and Europe at $620 billion. Middle East airlines will receive 1,110 aircraft valued at $160 billion, Latin American carriers with $110 billion, and Africa will take on $40 billion in new aircraft.

According to the 2006 CMO, cargo traffic will increase at a rate of 6.1% per year. The freighter fleets will double from 1,790 to 3,560 in 2025, with an aircraft shift toward wide-body freighters. Approximately 1,200 planes are slated for retirement, and 3,000 new freighters will be added. Most of these will be converted from passenger and combination aircraft, with 770 new production aircraft, according to Boeing.

Kit Darby, president of AIR, Inc., converted Boeing's CMO forecast into “pilots per aircraft” hiring demands for the forecasted period. A rough estimate of the pilots needed to fly the new aircraft would be: 27,200 new aircraft times 11.15 pilots per aircraft equals the need for 303,470 pilots worldwide. That would mean the need for 106,214 pilots to fly replacement aircraft and an additional 197,225 for new aircraft.

To get the net number of new pilots needed, retirements must be brought into the equation. If the average career spans 30 years and the retirement age is raised to 65, then 3.3% of the current pilot force will retire each year. Considering that there are approximately 100,000 active U.S. airline pilots and 100,000 worldwide currently flying, then bringing retirement into the calculation scenario would equate to 66.6% or 133,300 pilots retiring in next twenty years.

In addition to those retiring at age 65, on the average .5% of the pilots will retire early each year, mostly for medical reasons. This adds the need for an additional 20,000 pilots during the forecasted period for a total of 350,589, or 17,529 airline pilots annually.

The U.S. portion of this total would be approximately 5,660 per year including turnover pilots moving from smaller to larger airlines, which almost doubles the total number of flight-deck positions needed annually to between 8,000 and 10,000. This could create 180,000 new jobs in the U.S. with 300,000 total active pilots flying worldwide by 2026.

There are no crystal balls in this industry; history has more than proven that. But if we pay close attention to the forerunners, like Boeing, who has been in business long enough to be believable, then it appears that airlines worldwide may be flying through clear skies for next two decades. ➔
